Summary

Susan White was an activist and ALP member who was elected as to the Hornsby Council in 1999-2004 and was Deputy Mayor. She was active in her local community, and when elected to Hornsby Council was a member of many committees including Heritage, Traffic and Parking committees. In 2003 Susan White unsuccessfully ran for the New South Wales Legislative Assembly (Hornsby). At the time of her candidature, she was a member of the Berowra Valley Regional Park Trust and was active in campaigns to protect local bushland and to preserve the Heritage Precinct of Old Hornsby. She has four children and works as a school psychologist.
