

The Australian Women's Register

Entry type: Organisation

Entry ID: AWE0795

Centre for Research for Women

(1993 -)

Born 1 September, 1993, Bentley Western Australia Australia

Summary

Established in 1993 the Centre for Research for Women is a joint initiative between Curtin University of Technology, Edith Cowan University, Murdoch University and the University of Western Australia. Based on a model of inter-university collaboration, the centre promotes feminist research across disciplines, universities, the community and the public sector. The Centre for Research for Women maintains an extensive database of expertise aimed at expanding research opportunities and the dissemination of research programmes. Every three years the location of the centre rotates to another of the participating universities.

Published resources

Conference Proceedings

Inter-University, Inter-Disciplinary: Celebrating a decade of collaborative leadership at the Centre for Research for Women, Reid-Boyd, E, 2002

Resource

Trove, National Library of Australia, 2009

Archival resources

Centre for Research for Women

Centre for Research for Women

Author Details

Denise Tallis

Created 23 March 2004

Last modified 27 April 2009