First Ladies: Finding Women in Public Record Office Victoria

Occupation Exhibition

Summary

First Ladies: Finding Women in Public Record Office Victoria is an online guide to archival resources relating to women held at Public Record Office Victoria. Designed to assist researchers interested in women's history and gender studies by suggesting strategies for 'finding women in PROV', First Ladies also provides information about other important resources relating to women in Victoria's history. By linking these strategies to published material, and the Australian Women's Archives Project's online register, First Ladies provides a central access point that links together historical detail, archival resources, published resources and current information about women in Victoria.
